Topic: The Prevention of Climate Change

UN Environment Programme,

Alarmed by the possible effects of climate change on the global environment,

Stressing the fact that rising sea levels will leave not only over one hundred towns in Cuba underwater, but also leave other low lying regions in danger,

Deeply concerned about the displacement of not only people but also animals due to environmental changes from climate change,

Emphasizing that these effects are, for the most part, irreversible and will be devastating if we don't take action now,

Welcoming any contributions to alleviate this issue that will affect each and every human being,

1. Encourages all governments to work closely with citizens to prevent as much harm to the economy, environment, and overall society ;
2. Urges the remaining 50 member states to ratify the Paris Agreement that had to do with the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC);
3. Requests that all nations contemplate working towards a common goal of decreasing the extremity of these possible effects;
4. Condemns any member state that refuses to recognize that this issue exists and has the possibility to deeply affect the lives of generations to come;
5. Further reminds states that this is not an issue that only affects humans but also an array of other species;
6. Expresses its appreciation to any state that is willing to work together to do what they can to work towards resolving this issue.
